Cellphones are so common that you can see people talking on cellphones at any time and at any place. It seems that young people enjoy showing off their cellphones to their friends, and they tend to stick to their cellphones more often than older people do. In fact, people of all ages use cellphones. They use cellphones to do many things, such as chatting with friends, making dates, surfing the Net, looking for useful information they need, ... People can almost do everything the computer does with their cellphones.

However, cellphone users should know that there are some things they must be careful about, such as phone’s ring volume control. Have you had any unpleasant experiences of being bothered by the loud phone ring? When you are taking the train to a far place and just beginning to enjoy your quiet sleep, suddenly, you are woken up by a sharp and loud phone ring. It should be a very terrible experience. So, always remember to turn down your phone’s ring volume in public.
