(一)

A very old lady won a million dollars in a lottery. Her son and her son's wife were uncertain if they should tell her the good news because they were afraid the shock might kill her. So they decided to ask her doctor for help.

"I'm glad you told me," the doctor said. "A shock, even a happy one, could give her a heart attack. Leave it to me." The next day the doctor visited the lady and sat by her.

"Let's play a game, my dear," he said. "I'll ask you a question first, and then you can ask me one." He thought for a while and said, "Tell me. What will you do if you win a million dollars?"

"Oh, that's easy," the lady said. "'I'll give half of it to you because you are so good to me!"

When the doctor heard this, he fell off his chair and lay on the floor. He died of shock!

(二) To work or to sleep?

Most parents and teachers teach kids to work hard. However, working too hard might not be a good idea. Some people even work to death.

These people work very late for days and usually have less than four hours' sleep a day. They always feel very tired and often have a headache or sore muscles. Although they are tired, it's hard for them to fall asleep. Then they also find it hard for them to remember things. These are some warnings from their body. Finally, their body cannot bear it any more and they die suddenly.

According to a study, many students in Taiwan go to bed very late. Not all of them stay up to study. Many just spend time on the Net, surfing interesting websites, chat, or play games on the Net. This worries their parents and teachers a lot. If these students know what they will pay for their lack of sleep, they will go to bed earlier.
