Modern families have changed their sizes. Most relatives don't live together, and having only one child becomes the major trend today.

Money is a big problem, and it makes the family size become smaller and smaller. Lots of costs like education and health care are rising every year. Another reason is that husband and wife usually both work. They don't have enough time to take care of their children. Besides, when people want to get married, they are 35 or older. At that trouble, it is hard for women to have a child, let alone more children.

Some people will worry about their son's or daughter's being lonely. But when they grow up, spending time with friends can also help the loneliness problem. Studies also show that the only child can grow up happily, just like children with one or more brothers or sisters.
