In Kenya, life as a girl or woman is difficult. They can only follow their fathers or husbands. Many girls can't go to school, and men decide everything for them. When men hit them, they can't even ask others for help.

However, this village in Kenya is different. People call it Umoja. The girls and women here are happy. They make beautiful things and sell them to tourists. Only women and their kids live and work here. Men can visit the village, but they can't sleep here. In Umoja, women make the rules, not men. In 1990, Rebecca Lolosoli and 15 other women started Umoja. They wanted to build a safe place for the women and kids. They also built a school in the village. Every girl can go to school here.

Later, Umoja became famous around the country. More and more women and girls came to the village. Some left Umoja and started more villages like Umoja for women. They all have one hope: One day in Kenya, everything will be different. Women will not need to listen to men, and they can be their own boss.

Sue: Hi, Jay, I heard you had a good time with Meg at Joy Park last Sunday.

Jay: Yes. Why didn't you come with us? We got there by bus in only fifteen minutes.

Sue: I know, but it's always full of people on weekends. Also, I just went there with my parents last month.

Did you try the Dandelion Seat there? It's very popular, so people always need to wait for over one hour to get a ride.

Jay: You mean those flower-like umbrellas?

Sue: Yes. I enjoyed riding on the Dandelion Seat and looking over the city. It was so exciting.

Jay: Eh... It flies too high in the sky. I don't think it's fun to ride in the air. I feel like I could fall down any time. I liked taking the train to get around the park.

Sue: Maybe you will like it more at night. It's wonderful to see the beautiful lights in the sky.

Jay: Well... I don't like high places.
